

"BEES" RESULT OF LOCAL CONTEST

Written Spelling Test Given Pupils of Local High School Receive Wide Attention.

DISTRICT CONTEST HELD HERE

Twenty-three Contestants From Eight Counties Compete for Honors.

The first spelling contest ever conducted by the public schools of the fourth congressional district, was held in this city today. The contestants who participated in the "bee" were the winners in the various township and county contests, and those who were successful today will take part in the state contest which will be held later.

Although it is not generally known, the spelling contests which are creating so much interest throughout the state, are the result of a local contest which was held here last year at the suggestion of Postmaster E. A. Remy. At that time he secured permission to give a list of words to the high school pupils and these were written and corrected. The result showed that there were a large number of members in the high school who had neglected this phase of the course, and who were unable to spell correctly many of the common words which were given.

The report of the contest was given to the Indianapolis papers, and other schools throughout the state tried a similar plan. In several places the same list of words used in the Seymour schools was given and the result proved that many of the school children of the state were not giving the proper attention to spelling.

Later former Superintendent of Public Instruction, Robert J. Aley became interested in the various tests given in the state and began to make arrangements for the spelling "bees" which are now being given. Much interest has been shown in the contests and the various superintendents declare they have resulted in a greater enthusiasm in other departments of school work.

There were two sessions to the meeting here today. The first was called this morning about 11 o'clock for the purpose of organization. County Superintendent J. E. Payne, of Jackson county, called the meeting to order and introduced Superintendent John Clerkin, of the North Vernon schools who was chairman of the morning session. In his introductory remarks he stated that this was the first time that a spelling contest had been held in the fourth district, and he believed they would result in good for the schools. The contestants, he said, represented over two hundred thousand people in the fourth district, and for that reason were being watched with great interest. In speaking of the benefits derived from the contests the speaker said that they had meant much for Jennings county. A large number of people who have not spoken to him about school questions for eight years or more have made many requests about the "bees," and also concerning other matters regarding the schools. He said that many parents who had but little interest in the school work, had spent hours in pronouncing words to their children who took part in the "bees."

Following the address excellent music was given by the Eighth grade chorus. Superintendent J. A. Linke of the local schools, was introduced and gave a welcome address.

Prof. Linke said that the credit for holding the contest here was due largely to Superintendent Payne. When it was decided to conduct a district match he and Superintendent Payne talked the matter over and decided that as Seymour had a new school building, this would be a good place to hold the district "bee." When it was suggested the other superintendents of the district readily consented to having the contest here. The speaker said that this was the logical place to have the "bee" since it was the home of Mr. Remy who was the originator of the contests. He gave the contestants and visitors a hearty welcome.

After the close of the meeting the various county superintendents met in the office of Superintendent Linke and completed the plans for organization.

The contest proper began at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon. Before the contestants took their places along the wall in front of the assembly room they were instructed again as to how the contest would be conducted. The words were pronounced by Superintendent H. C. Knight, of Scottsburg, but before they were spelled the contestant to whom the word was given pronounced it again. This was done so that the spellers might know exactly what word they were attempting to spell.

The contests were given a test in oral work first. As soon as the contestants misspelled a word they were disqualified to continue in the "bee." When one-half of the contestants were spelled down the remaining number were given a test in written spelling. Prior to the test each contestant was supplied with a list of fifty words which were pronounced to them. These words have been studied diligently for several weeks. The manuscripts were corrected immediately upon the completion of the written test and one-half of the number who received the lowest grades were retired from further competition.

The contest was then continued by those who were eligible.

The judges for the contest were E. A. Remy, of this city and H. C. Whitacre of North Vernon.

The judges on the manuscripts were Superintendents J. C. Webb of Johnson county, Charles Talkington, of Bartholomew, J. E. Payne of Jackson, H. H. Torrence of Jefferson and Nicholson Clemens of Ripley.

The contest will probably not be completed for several hours as the contestants are well prepared and spelled the words given them promptly. All of them are deserving of much credit as there is considerable honor in being able to compete in the district contest. At 2:30 o'clock one-half of the contestants were out of the contest and at that time the manuscripts were distributed and the written contest began.

All the counties in the district were represented with exception of Ohio and Brown counties. Several of the contestants were unable to compete in the contest and alternates were present. All of the counties represented had three contestants with the exception of Switzerland, from which county there were only two, making the total number of contestants ants twenty-three.

LOCAL TRAINMEN ARE INTERESTED

In the Caboose Bill Which is Now Pending Before the Legislature.

RAILROADS ARE FIGHTING IT.

Two Seymour Orders Indorsed Bill. Provides For Heavy Standard Caboosees.

Local railway employees are deeply interested in the fate of the bill now before the legislature providing for heavy standard twenty-four foot caboosees on all railroads in the state. This is one of the measures that organized trainmen of the state have been pushing hard.

The Seymour O. R. C. and B. R. T. both indorsed the proposition and are anxious for its passage.

It has passed the senate and been reported for passage by the House Committee on Railroads. The representatives of the railway companies are now exerting every influence to prevent the bill's passage and threaten if it gets through the legislature to bring pressure to secure its veto by the governor.

The railway companies, including the Pennsylvania and B. & O. have issued a statement to the assembly giving their objections to the proposed law. They claim it will cost the companies $2,000,000 to replace within the next four years the 2,000 caboosees now in use in the state for which they will receive no return. The life of a caboose is about 25 years and the cost of those in use is from $900 to $1000. The proposed kind would cost $1,200. The railways ask that the bill be amended so as not to affect caboosees now in use as do the laws passed in Illinois and Ohio. The bill provides that railways comply with its provisions by June, 1914. After that date the old caboosees would go to the scrap pile.

In their reply to the statement by the railways the trainmen charge that the cost to companies is the argument used by the roads whenever the employees ask for legislation that stands for the protection of life and limb.

The reply further says: The Monon, Nickle Plate, Michigan Central, Lake Shore and other railroads have large caboosees for their employees and the reports show that the death and injured list is very small on these roads in comparison with other railroads in this state.

The saving of money through litigation for death and injuries would in a few years far exceed the amount the companies would be put to by the building of larger and safer caboosees.

SEVENTEEN CANDIDATES

Were Initiated By the Red Men Friday Night.

Seventeen candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Red Men's order last night. There was a very large attendance at the meeting, visitors being present from Brownstown, Crothersville, Aene and other points in Jackson and neighboring counties. A luncheon was served and there were a number of short addresses.

SUMMA.—George W. Summa, of Medora, died Friday night. He had been in failing health for some time. Mr. Summa was 66 years old, had spent all his life in Jackson county, and stood very high in the community in which he lived. He was a veteran of the Civil war, a Mason and a deacon in the Christian church. He had been married twice and leaves a wife, one son, D. K. Summa, and a daughter, Mrs. Claiborn Brewer, of Driftwood. The funeral services will be held at the Driftwood church at 2 p. m. Sunday.

NEW CHAIR

Presented Rev. James H. Hawk For His Study.

Down in the rear part of the Presbyterian church in Seymour is a most pleasing, comfortable, and in every way desirable study. In this study the pastors for many years gone, have stood, walked and sat, planning praying and studying that they might tell the Gospel story on the Sabbath, and lead the people up into a grander and better life. In this same room is now fully installed the Rev. J. H. Hawk, who is doing the same kind of work, and sitting in the same chairs. These chairs are not specially noted for their comfort or good looks and when a gentleman friend called on on the new pastor a short time ago he had pointed out to him the possible danger that might result from his being obliged to occupy these chairs. He had pushed into his mind, not so much the thought of tuberculosis but the more serious troubles that come to humanity such as foot gout, gangrene and more, appendicitis. The gentleman friend hastily went away, and on last evening a comfortable chair found its way into the study and now Rev. Hawk is wonderfully happy and and don't know where the chair came from but is so thankful that he has concluded to preach tomorrow evening at 7:30 on "Abraham Lincoln." No pews sold but all free just like the Gospel and no collection unless you want it. Come sure.

SEYMOUR CHAPTER

Of Eastern Star Entertained By Columbus Chapter.

The Columbus chapter of the Eastern Star entertained the Seymour chapter Friday night. Over thirty members of the order went from here. There were several candidates for initiation and the work was given by the Seymour chapter. Following it a fine banquet was served and there were several short speeches. Among the speakers was Alexander Shane, the ne wgeneral manager of the I. C. & S. He highly complimented the work of the Seymour chapter, stating that he had never seen better in the state. The Columbus chapter was organized several years ago by the Seymour chapter. Those who went from here last night very much enjoyed their visit and the entertainment given them.

OPINION OF JUDGE SHEA.

Tells Congressmen Marshall's Constitution is "Taking Well."

Judge Joseph H. Shea, who is spending several days with the democratic congressmen at Washington, has given an opinion that Marshall's constitution is "taking well" with the people although he admits that there has been some criticism of the manner proposed to adopting it.

A Washington dispatch this morning says: Judge Joseph H. Shea arrived here from Indiana today, and was welcomed by the Democratic members of Congress from Indiana, who proceeded to extract from his information about congressional apportionment and the progress that the Tom Marshall constitution is making. Judge Shea said he believed the final decision of the Legislature will be to let the thirteen districts stand practically as they are now, with the exception of the shift of a county here and there, so as more clearly to conform to the new unit. He also said that the provisions of the Tom Marshall constitution are taking well with the people of Indiana, although there has been a little criticism of the manner in which it is proposed to adopt the new constitution.

TO FIX PROGRAM OF LEGISLATION

Majority Members Will Get Together Tuesday Night.

THE REAPPORTIONMENT BILLS

Congressional and Legislative Apportionment Will Form the Principal Subjects of Caucus Discussion, but There Are Other Matters Pressing For Definite Understanding of Their Place on the Program.

Indianapolis, Feb. 18.—Next Tuesday night a joint caucus of house and senate Democrats will be held to consider congressional and legislative apportionment and other matters.

Much to the astonishment of many, the Republicans of the senate joined with the Democrats in passing unanimously the Beal-Shively employers' liability bill, a new measure which was decided on at a Democratic senate caucus. The passage of the new bill was made possible by attaching it as an amendment to the Shively bill, No. 192, after all of the latter had been stricken out after the enacting clause. As the Shively bill had already been advanced through second reading, it was possible to consider it at once on third reading. The new bill is a combination of what the Democratic caucus regarded the most desirable parts of the bills introduced by Senators Beal and Shively on the employers' liability question.

Provisions of the Bill.

The new bill provides that the burden of proving that an injured or killed employee did not use due care and diligence shall be on the defendant. No employee shall be held to have been guilty of negligence or contributory negligence "by reason of the assumption of the risk thereof in any case where the violation by the employer or his, its or their agents or employees, of any ordinance or statute enacted, or of any rule, regulation or direction made by any public officer, bureau or commission, was the cause of injury or death of such employee." In actions brought against the employer it shall not be a defense that the dangers or hazards inherent or apparent in the employment in which such injured employee was engaged contributed to the injury.

The senate committee on Judiciary B made short work of three bills concerning civil court practice. These bills, reported out of committee for indefinite postponement, were as follows: Requiring demurrers to specify in what respect the pleading demurred to is defective; amending certain civil procedure providing a judge may have discretionary power in change of venue when change from county is sought on ground of bias of residence, also providing no change of venue shall be granted from county when less than $200 is involved.

What Is the Mystery?

What is there wrong about the bill which will go down in Indiana legislative history as bill No. 105, against which there has been the most determined corporation lobby ever known in Indiana politics? Nobody has yet volunteered on the floor of either house any specific objection to it.

What is there right about it? Nobody has yet volunteered any specific defense of the bill, not even Senator Proctor, its father, who frankly admitted he could not explain its provisions. Right or wrong, the house Republicans, assisted by many Democrats, amended the bill sixty different ways and sent it back to the house committee on corporations for convalescence. Following is the bill in full:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Indiana, that no corporation organized in any other state shall have or exercise any power, authority or privilege in this state which is not possessed by corporations of the same class organized in this state.

Sec. 2. No corporation shall have or exercise any power, authority or privilege in this state which it does not have in the state in which it is incorporated, and such corporation is hereby expressly prohibited from doing anything in this state which it might not lawfully do in the state of its incorporation.

Public Accounting Law.

Changes of important nature were made in the senate bill to amend the uniform public accounting law by the house committee on judiciary, which filed its report. The relations of the chief examiner and the two deputies are changed so that they shall have equal power, except as to membership on the board of accounts, and shall constitute the state board of examiners. The salary of the member to be designated the chief examiner was reduced from $4,000 a year to $3,500 a year, and the salaries of the deputies were left at $3,000 a year each. The state board of accounts, composed of the governor, auditor of state and the chief examiner, was preserved.

That part of the present law which provides that the reports of the examiners shall constitute prima facie evidence in suits to recover on showing made, was changed so that the reports shall not constitute such evidence, but may be filed and used as exhibits, as exhibits are filed and used in other civil suits.

MINERS REPORTED TO BE IN REAL DISTRESS

Lack of Employment Has Caused Suffering.

Indianapolis, Feb. 18.—Reports from the Indiana coal fields to the headquarters of the miners' organization show there is much real distress among the miners, owing to the fact that work has been scarce during the winter. There are 10,000 miners in the state, and at no time has more than a third of them been employed, a fact due to the unusually mild weather and the consequent small demand for coal.

Arrangements are now making to give relief to many of the miners' families and to arrange so that work may be so distributed that every miner will have at least a share of it. The miners' officers say that there was never a time in the history of the state when the winter output of the mines was as small, considering the number of men usually employed.

A STIFF SENTENCE

Kentucky Negro Sent Up For Life For Stealing a Turkey.

Georgetown, Ky., Feb. 18.—For the first time in the history of Kentucky a man has been sentenced to life servitude in the penitentiary for stealing a turkey.

Caswell McCatten, a negro, who had served time twice before for other crimes, was brought into court, charged with having stolen one turkey gobbler just before Christmas from the roost of Reuben Offutt. Owing to the high price of turkeys at the time it was averred that Caswell had taken a fowl which was valued at more than $10. The jury brought in a verdict of life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act.

Will Hardly Pass Senate.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The senate committee on interstate commerce voted six to five to report without recommendation the Scott bill, which has passed the house, forbidding dealings in contracts for future delivery of cotton, where there is no intention to deliver. It is considered very doubtful whether it can pass the senate. Advocates of the bill seek to attach it as an amendment to the agriculture appropriation bill.

The Scrap Book

Why He Wept.

A medieval sultan had such an alarmingly grotesque and ugly face that he had all the mirrors removed from his palace so that he might avoid the pain of seeing his own features.

This sultan called on his grand vizier one day and by accident happened to catch sight of his reflection. His hideousness overpowered him, and he broke into violent sobbing. In this outburst the vizier promptly joined. Finally the sultan calmed down, wiped his eyes and got ready to smoke and talk, but not so the vizier. He sobbed on and on. His master, tapping his slipper impatiently on the cushions, waited for him to cease.

At length the sultan got angry and exclaimed: "Why do you weep longer than I, vizier?" "Alas," the grand vizier replied, "you wept, O commander of the faithful, because you saw your face but for an instant, but I see it all day and every day."

Today.

Say not tomorrow. Today is your own To parcel as you will. For who can tell that when the day has flown He shall be living still?

Oh, blest is he whose daily balance sheet Brings perfect work to view, Whose closing day leaves no task incomplete For other hands to do!

Tomorrow's but a jack-o'-lantern sprite That flees the laggard's clasp. Today's the power whose hand of gracious might Holds fortune in its grasp.

Picked Out the Largest.

There was a good but grouchy shortstop in one of the minor league clubs a few years ago who had a grudge against an umpire. Before the game the player bragged to his teammates of what he would do to the umpire if the umpire started anything on the field. There was no trouble, it happened, and when the club got back to the clubhouse the shortstop told his teammates how lucky the umpire was that he did not try to renew the trouble between them.

"I was ready for him," said the shortstop, "for I would have laid him out. I have two large pool balls in my pocket I brought out from the hotel, and I'd have soaked him with them. They were the largest I could find, too, for I picked out the fourteen and the fifteen."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Worrying the Golfer.

After the bungling golf beginner missed the ball seven times the caddy held up his hand. "There's a man ganging across in front of ye," he said. "What if he is?" retorted the novice, very red from his exertions. "I didn't tell him to!" "Ye maun cry 'Fore' if there's anybody in the way when ye're gaun tae hit the ba'." "That's all very well," exclaimed the novice angrily, "but how am I to know when I'm going to hit the ball?"

A Hot Bird.

There was a queer prank played by several members of a Walnut street club on a fellow member who a few days ago made the rather rash announcement that he never so forgot himself as to become intoxicated. The friends of "the man with the iron will," as he was at once named, determined to prove that he had made a false boast. So he was invited to attend a banquet at a fashionable hotel. Sparkling wine flowed freely, and he very soon "forgot." Then his friends paid for a room in the fourth floor. The "man with the iron will" was put to bed.

His friends smeared his body with vaseline and then, that he might not take cold, rolled him in a mass of feathers obtained by slitting open a pair of pillows. They turned on the steam heat full force and left. In about three hours "the man with the iron will" stirred uneasily. In a moment his eyes opened.

In a bewildered fashion he glanced at his hands and saw that he was covered with feathers. He gasped. Then a thought struck him, and he muttered, "This must be hades and I am a bird."—Philadelphia Times.

Forgetting Himself.

An elderly gentleman who knew something of law lived in an Irish village where no lawyers had ever penetrated and was in the habit of making the wills of his neighbors.

At an early hour one morning he was aroused from his slumber by a knocking at his gate and, putting his head out of the window, he asked who was there.

"It's me, your honor—Paddy Flaherty. I could not get a wink of sleep thinking of the will I have made."

"What's the matter with the will?" asked the lawyer. "Matter, indeed!" replied Pat. "Shure, I've not left myself a three legged stool to sit upon!"

FELL ON HIS PILLOW.

Then Came a Joyous Time For the Skating Rink Patrons.

When Mr. Homer Davenport was a boy roller skating reached Silverton. In his book, "The Country Boy," he tells of his plan to learn without getting hurt, as he thought falling about the skating rink was no joke. He borrowed a pair of overalls and the stoutest man in the village and a long pillow from his mother's bed and believed the game as good as won when he entered the door of the rink:

I lowered the pillow into the seat of the overalls after I had put them on and then got a boy to hold the pillow up against my back while I put my vest over it, and I dived out into the thick of the skaters. To my astonishment, I didn't fall. I leaped back and tried to fall once to see how it would be, and I really couldn't. I'd been skating fifteen minutes when I did fall, but fell forward and slammed my hands on the floor.

An elderly lady, who had had some troubles of her own that afternoon, skated up to me and told me she thought perhaps we went at it too fast. So we were leaning against the wall, talking over the scientific points of it when I gave the audience a rare treat.

While leaning there, talking, all at once my feet, that were close together, started and rolled out toward the middle of the room. I don't think I bent a finger, but I fell exactly like a tree, and lo and behold, the pillow burst. It must have been five minutes before they got through laughing all over the house. In that time the feathers were so thick they followed in a boiling streak after every skater.

The manager declared a recess of ten minutes while they swept out the hall, and at this point came another big laugh, as after three men had been sweeping twenty minutes they hadn't got over three feathers out into the street.

Some fellow suggested sprinkling, so they did, but most of them were in the air and wouldn't come down to be sprinkled, so they had to close the rink for the afternoon.

The manager of the rink tried to collect damages from my father, and I think there was a compromise made.

Thought He Needed Them.

Miss Amelia Austin listened with breathless attention to Mrs. Amasa Hunting's radiant account of the doings of James Hunting, her husband's younger brother, who had left Westbrook-in-the-Hills in his youth and had become a millionaire.

"Where is Jim this summer?" Miss Amelia inquired at the end of the recital.

"He has gone abroad for baths," replied Mrs. Hunting.

"I ain't one mite surprised to hear that," Miss Amelia said. "His mother never could make him wash his neck."

A Generous Jury.

A certain sergeant charged with killing a man was tried for murder. After the evidence was in and the speeches made the jury retired to deliberate. Presently word came that the jury had agreed and had framed a verdict. The judge ordered the jury into the courtroom and asked for the verdict.

"We find," read the foreman, "that the defendant is guilty of murder and assess his punishment at ninety-nine years and life imprisonment."

"Go back and write another verdict," ordered the judge.

Presently the jury returned with the verdict of life imprisonment.

The sergeant shook hands with all the jurors.

"He seems pleased," said a bystander to the bailiff. "Why is he shaking hands with the men who convicted him?"

"Why," was the reply, "he is thanking them for taking ninety-nine years off his sentence."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

An Irish Duel.

The annals of the Emerald Isle bristle with incidents of dueling in which Irish humor, if not at all times Irish bravery, is conspicuous. On one occasion Sir Jonah Barrington fought a duel with a barrister named McNally. The latter had one leg shorter than the other and because it was his habit when in a hurry to take two thumping steps with the short leg to bring up the space made by the long one he was nicknamed "One Pound Two." McNally could get no one of his bar to fight him, so he challenged Barrington, who good naturedly exchanged shots in Phoenix park.

The baronet hit his opponent in the braces, then called the "gallows," and feared he had killed him. When the result was made known one of the seconds shouted, "Mac, you are the only rogue I ever knew who was saved by the gallows."

AVERTS DROUTH IN MINNESOTA

The President Abrogates Those Indian Treaties.

MINNEAPOLIS FEELS RELIEVED

Liquor Case Affecting Lands in Minnesota That Were Once Indian, Including a Portion of Minneapolis, Has Been Disposed of by Special Executive Message and Orders Clearing Up Old Contentions.

Washington, Feb. 18.—In a special message and through the issuance of four executive orders, Mr. Taft disposed of the Minnesota liquor case that has bothered him and Secretary of the Interior Ballinger for several months. By the action of the president the "drouth" which threatened a large part of Minnesota, including a part of the city of Minneapolis, will be averted and liquor can be sold without federal interference on land that was "Indian" but which is now largely settled by white men.

Through his executive orders the president abrogated the articles of the Indian treaties which forbade the sale of liquor in the Indian country comprehended in these treaties.

In the special message the president recommends that congress enact legislation necessary to protect the Indians from the introduction of liquor into Indian country over which he exercises no authority under treaties. He recommends that in this portion of the Indian country congress provide that in such part as is not inhabited by Indians, the prohibition provision be so changed that white men may have their own laws regulating the traffic.

SPECIAL SESSION TALK

President May Call Congress Back to Put Through Reciprocity.

Washington, Feb. 18.—A special session of congress to act on the Canadian reciprocity bill now seems inevitable. President Taft has told members of the senate that he will call congress back if the reciprocity bill does not come to a vote before March 4, and supporters of the measure in that body are admitting that an extraordinary session now seems practically certain.

The calling of a special session will mean a revision of the tariff initiated by the Democrats of the house. It is understood that the present plan of the house Democrats in the event of congress being called back is to revise two or three schedules of the Payne-Aldrich law, including probably the whole schedule, and then tack the reciprocity agreement to these as a rider. By this move the president, to get his reciprocity, would be obliged to accept the Democratic revision. Many Republicans, notably the standpatters, view with alarm the outlook for a special session.

A HEATED DEBATE

Canadian Parliament Much Agitated Over Reciprocity Question.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 18.—The reciprocity debate will be resumed next Monday and will be continued all the week, the prime minister and members of the cabinet reserving their speeches until after the opposition has practically exhausted its supply of anti-reciprocity oratory. The latest effort of those who profess to be alarmed by the annexation scare, which has fallen flat here, is an advertising campaign.

Whole page advertisements calling on Sir Wilfrid Laurier to reverse his position and save Canada before it is too late appear in leading government organs. The advertisements were all placed through a Montreal agency, whose managers refuse to say who is paying for it. All the leading government organs have printed the appeal, together with a statement that it is a paid advertisement.

Crazed Woman's Awful Deed.

Kuttawa, Ky., Feb. 18.—After cutting the throat of her nine-year-old daughter, Mrs. Noble Williams severed her own jugular vein, dying almost instantly. The little girl seized two younger children and, running to the home of her grandmother, told of the tragedy. She had to hold her throat together all the time. The mother is supposed to have become suddenly insane.

Not Working For Money.

Danville, Ill., Feb. 18.—County Treasurer Wyson announced to the grand jury that the grand jury funds were exhausted and that if they continued longer in session they could not be paid. On a vote the jury members determined to "remain in session all summer, funds or no funds, if necessary." The foreman of the grand jury is Isaac Woodyard.

Bomb Explosion Still a Mystery.

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 18.—Five Italians who were held in connection with the investigation of the assassination of Mrs. Joseph Viotto, who was killed by a bomb exploded at her bedroom window, were released after they had been questioned several hours. The authorities are no nearer a solution of the mystery than in the beginning.

WHITE SLAVERS GIVEN A LESSON

United States Court Imposes
Prison Sentences.

NEW LAW IS CONSTITUTIONAL

In Deciding This Question the Federal Court at Cincinnati Disposes of a Batch of Prisoners in a Way to Startle and Dismay Hangers-On of Red Light District—Girls Lured From West Virginia.

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—With results that startled and dismayed the hangers-on of the red light district, the first prosecutions under the government's new "white slave traffic" law were brought to a close in the United States court here. Mrs. Emma Harris was convicted on the charge of assisting in luring women from West Virginia, and was sentenced to four years in the prison at Leavenworth, Kan. The woman almost collapsed when sentence was pronounced, and she filled the courtroom with her wailings. Bessie Green, one of the habitués of her place, was sentenced to a year in the prison for assisting in bringing in the West Virginia girls. Jacob Portney, a Chicagoan, found guilty of bringing a girl here on the promise of marriage and then placing her in an evil resort, was sentenced to four years in the Leavenworth penitentiary. Questions raised as to the constitutionality of the white slave law were all decided by the court in the affirmative. The society for the suppression of vice and other bodies assisted in the prosecution.

THIS MAY KILL IT

Senate Puts Off Resolution For Popular Election of Senators.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The senate gave up most of the day yesterday to the consideration of the resolution proposing a constitutional amendment for the popular election of senators. By a vote of 44 to 36 the senate, shortly before 6 o'clock, refused to adjourn, which showed that the friends of the resolution were in control of the situation, but a little later the plan of the supporters of the resolution to hold the senate in session was broken by a motion of Senator Lodge to go into executive session. This motion prevailed by a vote of 45 to 34.

After going into executive session the senate confirmed a few nominations and then adjourned until today. The action indicates the resolution is probably defeated, as today was given over to eulogies, and it is expected that the resolution will be displaced as the unfinished business next week and may not reach a vote this session.

COMBATIVE PUBLISHERS

Magazines Violently Opposed to Hitchcock's New Postage Plan.

New York, Feb. 18.—A fund which at present stands between $35,000 and $50,000 and is still growing has been subscribed to by various magazines in New York and Philadelphia to combat pending legislation in congress providing for increased postage on the advertising pages of periodical literature. This money will be used in a campaign of advertising in opposition to the rider to the general appropriation bill, which hits the magazines.

SEA-GOING AIRSHIP

Navy Gets a Convincing Demonstration From Glen Curtiss.

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 18.—Glen Curtiss gave the navy department another demonstration of the advantages of the aeroplane in naval conflict. He flew from his shed on the shore of the bay out to the cruiser Pennsylvania, landing in the water alongside the cruiser. His machine was hoisted on the deck of the ship. The aeroplane was put overboard again and Curtiss rose gracefully from the water, landing at his shed.

The purpose of the test was to demonstrate that an aeroplane equipped with hydroplanes does not need a special platform to land on a warship. Curtiss made the landing in the water and started again without difficulty or delay.

INSURRECTO CHIEF QUITE CONFIDENT

Madero Emboldened By Victory
Over Federals.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 18.—The federals were repulsed in their first attack upon the headquarters of Francisco I. Madero, leader of the Mexican insurrectos. The fight took place at Guadalupe Pass, a short distance west of Guadalupe, where Madero is stopping, and 200 federal cavalry under command of Colonel Rabago, from Juarez, 136 miles away, had to retire and send back to Juarez for reinforcements. These went out in the form of 500 infantrymen, 200 cavalymen, 90 artillerymen and two mountain Howitzers, also several rapid-fire guns.

The Mexican insurrecto chief declares that he will not return to the United States, but is satisfied that his army is now strong enough to protect him in Mexico. He will move at once, he said, into the mountains south of the international boundary about twenty miles, and he is certain the federals can never take him. He says his soldiers will take Chihuahua while Navarro is at Juarez.

SECOND DEDICATION

Battlefield of Osawatimie Neglected, Say the Folks There.

Osawatimie, Kan., Feb. 18.—When Theodore Roosevelt came to Osawatimie last fall it was for the purpose of dedicating the John Brown battlefield, which has been made a state park. Mr. Roosevelt made a great address which has become known as the "Osawatimie speech," but he said little about John Brown.

Now there is a feeling in the town that the battlefield was not properly dedicated, and there is much talk of another service at the time of the anniversary of the battle next fall, when the dedication will be done as some people think it should be.

IOWAN PRODUCES ELIXIR OF YOUTH

Sour Milk Ice Cream Is His Old Age Cure.

BULGARIANS FOLLOW THE PLAN

Soda Fountain True Spring For Perpetual Juveniles, Asserts Professor Mortensen of the Hawkeye State's Agricultural College—Gives Formula of Battling Bacteria to World.

Professor Mortensen of the dairy department of the Iowa State Agricultural college at Ames, Ia., has invented a new frozen elixir of life which he calls lacto.

When Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute at Paris published his book on "The Prolongation of Life," Professor Mortensen got an idea. Metchnikoff traced the cause of old age to the putrefactive bacteria that make their home in the intestines. These bacteria throw off poisons which cause ill health, old age and finally death. The way to dislodge them is to give them a dose of their own medicine. The lactic acid bacteria which are found in sour milk produce an acid which is fatal to their poisonous relatives.

In certain districts of Bulgaria, where sour milk is a regular article of diet, the people are said to live to an old age not approached elsewhere. But people generally don't like to drink sour milk.

Bacteria Made Palatable.

So Professor Mortensen started to work out his idea, which was to supply the lactic acid bacteria in a palatable form. At first he diluted the elixir of life with buttermilk flavored with fruit juices. Later he decided to put his lactic acid bacteria in cold storage and market them in the form of ice cream rather than as a drink.

Here was the opportunity. An ice cream cone afloat in a sea of soda water has come to be the great national drink of the United States.

The substitution of lacto for ice cream cannot but result in a great improvement in the health of the frequenter of the soda fountain. Professor Mortensen believes. Aside from being loaded with friendly bacteria, it contains less fat than ice cream, which makes it more digestible. Lacto contains a high amount of protein, the muscle building part of the food.

Lacto Had a Majority.

An experiment was carried on at Ames to see just how well lacto was liked by the average person. Out of 179 persons who sampled lacto 128 pronounced it very good, thirty-seven good, six fair and eight poor. Comparing it with common vanilla ice cream, 111 reported that they preferred lacto, nine considered it equal to ice cream, and fifty-nine preferred ice cream.

Lacto is made of lopped whole or skimmed milk, with the addition of eggs, sugar, lemons and flavoring material. It can be made in a one gallon freezer on the back porch as easily as in the factory. The family recipe given by Professor Mortensen is as follows:

Take a bottle of good fresh milk which has not been heated and set it away in a temperature of from 68 to 70 degrees F. until it curdles. If it forms a smooth solid curd without pinholes, if the aroma is clean and pleasant and the flavor nice and creamy, it can be used as a starter for a larger amount of pasteurized whole or skimmed milk.

After this second batch of milk has curdled it should have a mild clean acid flavor. The curd must be thoroughly broken up by the pouring from one dish to another until it is as thick and velvety as rich cream.

Formula of Elixir.

From this "lacto milk" lacto can be made by the following formula, which is sufficient for one gallon:

Two and one-half quarts lacto milk.
One and four-fifths pounds sugar.
Two eggs.
One-half pint cherry juice or concentrated cherry sirup.
One-third pint lemon juice.

Other fruit flavors can be used instead of cherry as desired. The yolks and whites are beaten in separate containers. Both are then added to the milk. The mixture is thoroughly stirred and strained through a fine wire gauze. The fruit juices are added last. If there is any indication of the juices precipitating the casein they should not be added until the mixture has begun to freeze.

The freezer is run until it turns with difficulty, when the paddle is removed. The brine is removed and the freezer repacked with ice and salt and left for an hour or so before the contents are served.

PENALTY ISLAND FOR SALE.

Was Dumping Ground For Deformed Children of Hebrideans.

The island of Lewis, now up for sale, is a favored spot for students of eugenics. According to Mr. Mackenzie, the historian of the outer Hebrides, the custom of putting weakly or deformed children to death by "exposure," as Plato recommended, long prevailed on this island, and "instances have been known in comparatively modern times."

As a result of this practical provision for the survival of the fittest by the elimination of the unfit the islanders possess remarkably fine physiques, and consumption is unknown.

Tennessee Congressman Whose Codification Bill Languishes.

NO ANTI-INJUNCTION LEGISLATION ACTION

Friends of Such a Measure See
Last Hope Gone.

Washington, Feb. 18.—For this session anti-injunction legislation is dead. There is no possibility now of any agreement by either house on the pending bill providing for a limitation of the power of the federal courts to issue injunctions. Proponents of this legislation were hopeful that an opportunity would be offered to insert an anti-injunction clause into the Moon bill providing for a codification of the laws relating to the judiciary. This measure will not again be considered at this session, and even if it does no opportunity will be afforded to secure the adoption of an anti-injunction amendment. The administration, which has advocated legislation of this character, has abandoned hope of action at this session.

LONGER TERMS

For High School is Object of Measure Introduced.

To meet the need of several high schools in the state which maintain a term of school longer than that of the lower grades, the State Board of Education yesterday appointed three of its members, J. N. Study of Fort Wayne, J. C. Webb of Johnson county, and R. L. Kelly of Earlham College, to draft a bill enabling high schools in certain townships to continue their terms longer than the term of school of the lower grades. Attorney-General Thomas M. Honan has held that, under the present school law, the high schools could not hold a longer term than maintained in the lower grades. Several schools of the state are compelled to extend the time of high school in order to complete the course prescribed by the Board of Education, and to do this they will be removed from the ranks as accredited schools.

A rule was passed by the board providing that, if the term of a commissioned or certified high school is shortened by being closed on account of an epidemic of contagious diseases, the certificate or commission from the school will not be affected. The board also added French to the course of study in the high schools.

Entertained.

Miss Ethel Blackledge entertained a group of friends yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Agnes McCoy, a bride-elect. Miss McCoy's wedding colors, yellow and white, prevailed in all the decorations. The parlors were arranged with vases of spring flowers and strands of smilax, studded with tiny incandescent lights, were festooned from the corners of the dining room to the chandelier in the center, and vases and wall pockets were filled with yellow jonquils and ferns. It was a surprise miscellaneous shower for the bride-elect and the gifts were concealed in the center of the table.

The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. C. Blackledge, Mrs. O. S. Coffin and Mrs. J. P. Johnson. Chances Improve.

A Washington dispatch says: The outlook for the appointment of Edwin Lee as United States marshal is improving. Representative Crumpacker has been summoned to a White House conference tomorrow morning and it is believed the appointment of Mr. Lee will be the subject discussed. Mr. Lee has returned from Washington and his friends are confident that he will receive the appointment.

RICE & HUTCHINS'
School Shoes

That have given the least bit of dissatisfaction. Though we guarantee every pair to give reasonable service and against ripping, not a pair has been reported. The reason is they make good shoes only in immense quantities at smallest possible margin of profit.

This also explains why they are the largest manufacturer of shoes in the world.

ROSS

FROM THE TROPICS TO HEAL US.

In Central America many natives are gathering the seeds of this plant, Cedron Seed, a rare medicine that has valuable curative powers. But few drug stores carry this seed, owing to the high cost of the article.

This country is a large consumer of this costly seed because it enters into the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna, sold the world over.

COMMENDATION

For Dr. H. P. Butts, Secretary of Crothersville Health Board.

Dr. H. P. Butts, secretary of the Crothersville Health Board, has received the following letter from Secretary J. N. Hurty of the state health board, commending him for his action in establishing a quarantine during the measles epidemic at Crothersville:

Dear Doctor: You are certainly a man of determination and nerve. I do not know any other officer in the state who would stand so strongly behind his orders. I have read this morning from a clipping in the Seymour Republican about the action you have taken to sustain your health orders. It is very probable you did not like my letter for, of course, it was not as encouraging as you desired it to be, but I had to stick to the rules, to the law and to my private opinions. I think the Indianapolis Evening News will have something to say about your efficiency. I wish you always good luck and success.

"The Man on the Box."

A superb company of players will be seen at the Majestic Theatre on Friday, Feb. 24, in a splendid revival of Harold McGrath's classic story, "The Man on the Box," dramatized by Grace Livingstone Furniss. This play ran over 200 nights in New York and was an instantaneous and decided hit from the moment of its first production and has in no degree lost any of its pleasing powers to catch and hold in its entrancing and fascinating spell the hearts of its hearers and delight them with its strong heart interest, its delicious, high-class comedy, as pure and rich as the crisp, sparkling wit, fresh from the pen of a master hand who has in one grand stroke, reached every passion of the human soul. The piece will be correctly staged and costumed in every detail.

When the baby is cross, or ugly, its time to give Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Its greatest baby medicine known to loving mothers; makes them fat, sleep and grow; makes them sweet and cheerful.—Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.,

Audience Pleased.

"The Isle of Spice" was given before a large house at the Majestic Friday evening and everyone seemed to be well pleased with the performance. The songs were catchy and were given hearty encores. There were seventeen girls in the chorus and their voices were fairly good. From here the company went to Madison.

Conquering the Atlantic.

Whether the ocean traveler is rich or poor, he can no more realize the contrast between his experience and that of the first men who crossed the Atlantic than the tourist gliding over a storm swept moor in a closed motor-car can feel the misery of a tramp staggering over it in open rags. The Atlantic is as cruel as ever—a treacherous, gloomy and violent sea—but so completely is it baffled and shut out, so smoothly ridden over, that the old traveler, hardly conscious of its being, is half inclined to think its character reformed. What higher praise can be given and what less praise is due to our modern shipbuilders?—London Times.

FIGHT UNTIL THE END.

Life can be made a success. It is not a question of climbing above poverty; it is a question of understanding life. So many of us have been lured away and fascinated by what turn out to be phantoms and false gods. We have had to wheel back and begin over again and fight along against tremendous odds, and yet with all that life can be made a success, for success consists in doing right, in doing the best you can with what you have. Fight until the end.

Fifty Years Ago Today.
Feb. 18.

All United States military posts in Texas were surrendered to the Confederates by General D. E. Twiggs, U. S. A., commander of the department. Inauguration at Montgomery of Jefferson Davis and Alexander H. Stephens as president and vice president of the Confederate States of America. In his address Mr. Davis said, "As a necessity, not as a choice, we have resorted to separation." Salutes of 100 guns were fired at Charleston and Mobile in honor of the inauguration. The first Italian parliament opened at Turin.

SATURDAY NIGHT
SERMONS

BY

REV. SAMUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

THE FACE IN THE FIRELIGHT.

Text. "While I was musing on the fire burned."—Psalm xxxix, 3.

There's something snugly and cozily heart warming about that picture of Ik Marvel's in "The Reveries of a Bachelor." As night approaches he has a huge pile of oak and hickory beside the hearth, snuffs out the tall candle, draws up his chair, sets one foot on each side the iron fire-logs, lights his cigar and watches the faces in the firelight. He sees a sweet faced girl, a bit of lace running around a well chiseled neck, the hair parted to a charm over a forehead fair as any dream. He reaches over and clasps a hand of tapering white fingers lying temptingly within reach and talks soft and low in the presence of the blaze while the winter wind whistles outside and the hours slip by. Here, too, in this text sits David, with his hand resting against his forehead, his door shut against the world, lost in remembrance of pleasant days. Not many men and women but would be richer to stop now and then and live over old times, with just enough clouds in the sky perhaps to make beautiful sunset memories.

Smoke.

While we muse the past comes trooping through the halls of memory. No man so poor as he who has no memory. The smoke of youth curls about the log as the fire of life struggles toward flame. Boyhood comes back:

I remember, I remember, the house where I was born.

The little window where the sun came peeping in at morn.

With the sunrise came also the great hopes and aspirations of youth—the dreams of the sea, pirates, treasure islands, strange shores with monkeys, parrots and barbaric chiefs, or it's westward the course of our mental empire takes its way—we're astride a mustang galloping over the prairie, rounding up the cattle or in the forests of Oregon lying dreaming at night under the stars in a lumber camp. "The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts." How prosaic are the school days! How puzzling are the problems of yards of carpet for a room so many feet square, the rolls of wall paper for a room of certain dimensions, making allowance for so many windows and doors, and the plus and minus signs of algebra! Who ever could get them right? Saturday came, with those endless morning chores and the all too short afternoons of play; Sunday, with memories of the old church, "perfracted meetings," weird hymns and strange experiences. Out from the haze and smoke of that glorious youth came stalwart young manhood with neither pain nor ache—heart, stomach and lungs of a perfect machine. Vital days these—character forming, mistakes made, never quite righted yet. Out from the fire come the faces of visions and dreams and loves and friendships. Ha, ha, the world is young!

Flame.

Now smoke is gone, flame is bright, log of life is giving its blazing strength. Days of strenuous manhood, these. One moonlight night there's a repetition of the sweetest story ever told and soon the fragrance of orange blossoms. Happest days of your life. Sun rises early, sets late. Then came a cloud and from its silver lining a tiny immortal soul. The prattle of that voice was a song memory through a busy day. Who spoke of time with leaden heels? Ho, ho! Then came a storm, low mutter of thunder, flashes of heat lightning. You're on the wrong road. Oh, the perils of middle age! Then she who said "for better or for worse" proves an angel of light. And troubles never come singly. Fever comes and blows its hot breath in your youngest's face. The lights go out and you are in darkness. But God did not leave you there. Mercy spoke. You came out of it all with a lower tone of voice and some gray hairs. You stand before the same altar you stood years ago with "her." It's pretty late to be turning homeward. Wife and children started long since, but it's right, though late.

Ashes.

How low the fire is! The backlog is crumbling to ashes. Must stir up the embers. That goldenrod in the vase is turning silvery. Hear your son's children shout as they start chestnutting. Ah, time was! You're not old, however. Adam was 930, Methuselah 969! He, he! That's a good one! You're only threescore and—s-s-h! Tut, tut! Queer how Judge Johnson dropped off. You were boys together. What did the preacher mean in the ritual at the graveyard—"ashes to ashes?" His widow said in her letter of acknowledgment to you that she was "living by the ashes of a dead fire." The embers are dying out. Faces are fewer. They are old and age worn and so indistinct. But "her" face—is it a year since you murmured "till death us do part?" Her face in the firelight is as fresh as a certain June morning in the long ago. You quote:

And again I feel the pressure of her slender little hand

As we used to talk together of the future we had planned.

The ashes are dead. You take the candlestick—it's bedtime—out into the darkness of the lonely hall, up the stairs to rest. To awake in a new morn—

And with the morn those angel faces smile

Which you have loved long since and lost awhile.

SHE DID IT HERSELF.

It Was a Good Job, Too, but Her Husband Didn't Appreciate It.

A Philadelphia man who may be designated as Mr. Blank was asked by his wife the other day to aid in removing inside shutters from windows throughout the house so that they could be washed. Being in a hurry, he asked his better half to defer the matter until his return from the office. "I'll do it myself," was her retort. "Don't," was Mr. B.'s counsel as he departed; "women don't understand such work."

This of course only more firmly decided Mrs. Blank to go ahead, and when Blank returned that night he found the shutters down. His wife was nursing several lacerated fingers, but she wore a triumphant air. "The screwdriver slipped once or twice," she explained in response to his inquiring glance at her bandaged digits. "Screwdriver slipped," repeated Mr. B. in a dazed tone. "Great snakes, woman! You don't mean to say you unscrewed all the shutter hinges?"

"Of course," said his wife complacently. "What other way could I get the shutters down?"

For answer Blank lifted a shutter and pulled the pin out of one of the hinges, showing that the taking down of each shutter only involved the removal of two pins. When he figured that there were ten pairs of shutters and each pair required the driving of sixteen screws to put them up he swore while his wife wept.

Soon Learned.

A Scottish gillie met the proffer of a nip from his master's flask with the protest that he "cudna drink oot o' a bottle."

Pressed, however, to try, he put the flask to his lips, and the sound of the steady gurgling never ceased until he handed back the empty flask.

"Hoots, Dugald," sadly observed the laird, as he held the flask upside down to confirm his astonished vision, "mebbe ye canna drink oot o' a bottle—but, heh, man, ye'd soon learn!"

He Made a Mistake.

A man from an up state town entered a conference in New York city and sat down near the press table. It was noticed that, though he appeared bewildered, the man was eager to be pleased. He clapped boisterously at the slightest provocation, and where others only smiled he would throw back his head and laugh loud and long. At the end of an hour or an hour and a half the man stopped his noisy applause and mirth, and, leaning toward a reporter, he whispered: "Say, this is the white faced minstrel show, ain't it?"

HE CLAPPED BOISTEROUSLY.

"Why, no," the reporter answered. "The white faced minstrels are two doors below."

"What's this, then?" he inquired. "This," said the reporter, "is the annual conference of the Egyptologists' society."

"Waal," said the crestfallen man, "I'll be!" And, with a look of disgust, he hurried from the hall.

Taking No Chances.

An old man who had led a sinful life was dying, and his wife sent for a nearby preacher to pray with him.

The preacher spent some time praying and talking, and finally the old man said, "What do you want me to do, parson?"

"Renounce the devil, renounce the devil," replied the preacher.

"Well, but, parson," protested the dying man, "I ain't in position to make any enemies."

Shooting to Kill.

Poetry, it is said, at the present time is somewhat of a drug on the market, as a certain Scotchman and would be Bobby Burns found out to his cost when he tried to dispose of it—a thing, by the way, which he never did.

"I wish, dear," he remarked to his sister one day, "that you would take this latest poem of mine to your husband and ask him what he thinks of its merits."

His sister willingly agreed to do so and that evening took the poetical brain wave in question to her husband, saying: "You are such a good judge of poetry, George. I wish you would just run your eye through this poem of my brother's and tell me what you think of it."

The long suffering husband, who had waded through too many scintillations of the kind on previous occasions, took it up with a sigh and commenced to read it through. The poem was entitled "I Wonder Whether He'll Miss Me."

The good fellow read it right through from beginning to end.

Then he handed it back to his wife, remarking sadly, "He ought never to be trusted with firearms again if he does."

The Scrap Book

Misjudged.

A young woman rushed up to a young man on Superior avenue the other day and shook hands with him cordially. "I have a confession to make to you," she gurgled. "You won't believe it, but I always thought you drunk."

The young man fingered for a clove and tried not to blush.

"And now," she pursued, "I find that you are actually a temperance worker. Now I see you are trying to be modest and deny it, but you can never fool me again. I overheard my brother saying, in his slangy way, that you were a great booze fighter! Oh, he was in earnest. Why, he said that you had punished more of the stuff than any other ten men in Cleveland. I'm proud to know you. Will you ever pardon me for misjudging you?"

She was gone before he got through choking.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Life.

Ah, what is life, so brief at best? A waking between rest and rest; An insect's trail along the sand; A gent's bright flash upon the hand; A wave line traced on ocean's shore, Just rippled there, then seen no more; A breath upon a frosted pane, A moment warmed, then chilled again; The shadow of a cloud that stays Until obscured by passing haze, Canst think of aught more brief, more fleet?

To image forth Time's flying feet? Yet in the shadow, in the breath, Our love awakes, which knows no death, And life, which seems so brief to be, Is crowned by immortality! —Margaret May.

The Parrot Told.

The late Dr. Macgregor of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, had a favorite parrot, a brilliant linguist and remarkably "quick study." As he was going into the country for a month Dr. Macgregor arranged with a friend who had a parrot to take charge of his pet. He ordered his beadle to carry the cage to the bird's new abode.

It was a wet and stormy night, and the beadle grumbled to himself in language unbecoming a minister's man, while the parrot listened. So when he was set down in the parlor of a saintly lady and the cover removed the bird addressed himself directly to the other parrot:

"Ye — ugly beast, if it wasna for you I widna hae been oot the nicht!"

Jolted the Judge.

A prominent New York Justice got a jolt the other day, and he is telling the story of it yet. He said that late one afternoon he gave a case to a jury and that it was 4:30 o'clock the following morning before the jury agreed upon a verdict.

"I waited for the verdict," said the justice, "and after it was returned I told the jurors that, as it was possible that most of them were married men, if they desired I would give to each a certificate that he had been detained until 4:30 o'clock in the morning on jury service."

"The jurors consulted together for a few minutes," continued the justice, "and then the foreman arose and said, 'We thank you for your consideration and appreciate the kindness of your offer and desire to say that if your honor needs a certificate to the effect that you were detained until 4:30 o'clock in the morning waiting for our verdict we will gladly so certify.'"

The justice hastily declined this kind offer with thanks and just, as hastily adjourned court.

His Recommendation.

A girl named Norah O'Brien had been employed as housemaid for a week, so an English story runs, during which time she had drunk the contents of a bottle of choice whisky. She became dissatisfied with her position and asked her employer for a "character." Her employer wrote, "Norah O'Brien has been in my employ only a week, but I know that there is much that is good in her."

Made the Most of It.

A typographical change, which was not exactly an error, recently cost an Indianapolis printer $5 when he had expected to send only 10 cents. The printer in question was busy a few days ago, when he was called on by an itinerant member of the craft, who asked for 10 cents with which to buy some liquid refreshment. Not having 10 cents in change, the printer hastily wrote an order on a downtown saloon, as follows:

"Please let bearer have one good drink and charge same to —."

When later he went to pay the bill it was $5, and he at once raised objections. The original order was produced, when it was found that the itinerant had changed the "I" in the word "drink" to "u," making the paper good for "one good drunk." It had taken fifty glasses of booze to satisfy the altered conditions of the order to the satisfaction of the bearer. —Indianapolis News.

He Wouldn't Bribe Them.

One of the cleverest bits of electioneering dodgery engineered in England was devised by an agent who had been forbidden to corrupt the electors. He called a meeting and attended with his pockets full of gold. "I have to inform you, gentlemen," he began, "that there is to be no bribery on our side during this election. (Hear, hear.) For my part I do not intend to give away a penny piece. (Uneasy silence.) But I am afraid there are some d—d rascals in this room and that presently they will lay me on the table and take 500 sovereigns out of my pockets." The next few minutes he spent upon the table.

JOSH GAVE THE CUP.

But He Couldn't Make Good on the Bear Proposition.

Josh Billings, the gaunt, long haired philosopher, was one of the most genial of men. Many of his ill spelled sayings were meaty, and one of them at least was worthy of Solomon. It was:

"The best way for a father to train his boy in the way he should go is to go that way himself."

Some years ago, when Josh was staying in the White mountains, he was charmed by a beautiful spring of clear, icy cold water which bubbled up at the side of the highway. He made the carriage stop and, removing his slouch hat, lay down on his face and drank a deep, refreshing draught. In compliment to him the residents in the neighborhood named the fountain "Josh Billings' spring," and it has thus been known ever since.

At the nearest village Josh bought a huge tin cup and scratched on its side the warning:

Whoever steals this fine big cup By a big black bear will be eat up.

JOSH BILLINGS.

This cup was placed on a broad, flat stone within convenient reach. A few days later the humorist, having nursed a consuming thirst, walked all the way to the spring to quench the same. To his dismay and anger the utensil was gone, and on a sapling near at hand was tacked a bit of paper with the penciled words:

Dear Josh, your cup is gone, I know not where.

Now, if you please, trot out your big black bear.

Fortunately for the poet he did not sign his name or give any clew to his identity.—Los Angeles Times.

He Meant Well.

When Earl Spencer was lord lieutenant of Ireland the people of Dublin called the beautiful countess, one of the loveliest women of her time, "Spencer's Faerie Queen."

But when their excellencies were about to return to England Irish gallantry was shown in a characteristic way. At the farewell banquet in their honor an Irish gentleman who was anxious to pay the beautiful countess a compliment got up and said, with much fervor and many bows:

"We all hope soon to see you back again, you and the work of art by your side."

Willing to Be Fined.

There was an actor who worked for a manager who had a mania for fining the members of his company. For a bad makeup, for lateness, for noise in the wings, for a hundred things, the players were bilked from a quarter to $2. The worst of all the fines was one of 10 cents for failure to return "properties," for this was a duty that every one, and this actor in particular, continually forgot.

In a financial drama one night the supply of stage money ran out, and the manager loaned our actor $8 or $9 in real bills to use in the next scene.

The manager said sternly to the actor the following Saturday:

"By the way, Booth, you haven't returned that $9 I gave you in act three Monday night."

"Never mind," said the actor. "Just fine me a dime and call it square." —Philadelphia Ledger.

Took His Medicine.

A famous actor will never take medicine, and his medical man was often obliged to resort to stratagem to impose a dose upon him. There is a play in which the hero is sentenced to drink a cup of poison. The actor in question was playing this character one night and had given directions to have the cup filled with port wine. But when he came to drink it what was his horror to find it contained a dose of senna! He could not throw it away, as he had to hold the goblet upside down to show his persecutors he had drained every drop of it. Our hero drank the medicine, but he never forgave his medical man, as was proved at his death, for he died without paying his bill.

WHEN HE CAME TO DRINK IT.

Merely a Dentist's Job.

MacDougal-Dougal determined to celebrate the christening of his first-born in grand shape and journeyed to London to buy many things for the house, and especially a fine piano.

MacDougal-Dougal decided to have the piano sent on in advance. He didn't want to take it up with him, for it was a somewhat bulky package, so he dispatched it jubilantly before he left town.

When he arrived in Scotland he was met by his trusty retainer.

"Well, did the piano arrive safely?" he asked.

"Aw, weel," replied Donald, "she's as weel as ye could expect. She slipped as she was gangin' tae the hoose an' broke a foo of her front teeth, but I dinna think she's reelly hurt."

CORRUPTION IN THE
PITTSBURG SCHOOLSExposure Worse Than Recent Aldermanic Stench.

Pittsburg, Feb. 17.—A system of corruption in the public schools system as amazing and as repulsive as that brought to public view during the councilmanic hoodluming expose is disclosed by the Voters' League investigation. District Attorney Blakely said all the Voters' League has made known is fully verified.

With reference to the statement in the league's report, that organization does not propose to move to have arrests made, as it did in the councilmanic graft cases eighteen months ago, for fear of clogging the wheels of justice with the many cases that could be brought, and that its report is merely intended as a warning to wrongdoers.

The report to the Voters' League shows the public school system to be more corrupt than was that of the city council when more than one hundred members were indicted last year.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—In the Panchenko poisoning case the jury returned a verdict of guilty against Count DeLacy and found extenuating circumstances in the case of Dr. Panchenko on the ground that he was Count DeLacy's tool. Mme. Muravieva was acquitted. DeLacy was condemned to convict labor for life, and Panchenko was sentenced to convict labor for fifteen years.

Jasper, Ind., Feb. 17.—The postoffice and Guckenberger's saloon here were robbed. The safe in the postoffice was wrecked. Only a few cents was taken. The sheriff and the burglars exchanged shots, but no one was hit and the men escaped.

BITTER DEBATE
IN THE HOUSE

North Pole Controversy Breaks
Out in New Spot.

MR. MACON IS NITUPERATIVE

Gentleman From Arkansas Not Only Rips Peary Up the Back, but Pours Out the Vials of His Wrath on the Devoted Heads of Certain and Sundry Newspaper Editors—Mr. Moore to the Rescue.

Washington, Feb. 17.—When Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania arose to reply to a speech made by Representative Macon of Arkansas in denunciation of Commander Peary of Arctic fame a bitter debate was provoked in the house last night. Mr. Macon characterized Peary as "an adventurer" and "a fur trader" and declared he was unworthy of belief. The Arkansas member also took occasion to jump on New York newspaper editors who have criticized his course in the Peary case, referring to them as "pea-eyed, pin-headed and putrid-tongued infinitesimals."

Representative Moore questioned Mr. Macon as to his knowledge of polar questions, taking up the cudgels for Peary, whom he commended as "one of the nation's heroes." He denounced Mr. Macon's speech as an "offensive diatribe" and as an unjust and outrageous assault upon an honorable man. Everybody sat up and took notice when Mr. Moore observed in the course of his remarks that "heroes like Hobson, Dewey and Peary have not time to stop and answer every dog that bites at their heels."

Peary Roundly Abused.

Representative Macon took as the text for his address the pending bill which proposes to place Peary on the retired list as an admiral in recognition of his polar work. The Arkansas statesman declared that Peary to his mind was "an unfaithful servant, an idle loafer, and ought to be driven from the service instead of being promoted as proposed." He charged that Peary had spent most of his time getting rich as a fur trader, and referred to him as "self-exaggerated, self-opinionated, puffed-up near-hero."

Peary's story, he insisted, was wholly unbelievable and unsupported by scientific proof. Dr. Cook was as much entitled to belief, Mr. Macon said, as Peary.

Mr. Macon paid his compliments to the Peary club and the National Geographic society. Speaking of a book written by Peary, Mr. Macon said it was a tale of "unbelievable exaggeration."

"The material for it," he continued, "was collected while our hero was loafing around in northern latitudes gathering up furs to sell and to bestow upon the members of the Peary Arctic club and the Geographical Society of Washington, that virtually accepted his discovery of the north pole before examining his proofs, while drawing his pay from the government with great regularity." Mr. Macon said that in his opinion neither Peary nor Cook reached the pole.

Mr. Moore, in replying, paid a high tribute to Captain Peary, saying that the attainment of the pole had come at the end of years of labor and hardships.

EMPTIED THE HOUSE

Wealthy New Yorker's Goods Carted
Away by His Caretaker.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The local police discovered that nearly every piece of furniture in the country residence of Henry Holt, a wealthy publisher of New York, valued at more than $15,000, had been carried away and sold by robbers. Two hours later Albert Brown, aged fifty, caretaker of the place, and his son Albert, aged eighteen, who live in apartments over the stable, had confessed. Considerable of the furniture has been recovered from a dozen junk and second-hand dealers and from private families here who purchased it. The Browns declare they know where most of it is and will help get it back. It is believed they cleaned up more than $3,000 on the robbery.

Women Present Petition.

Indianapolis, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Clara Sears of Anderson and Mrs. Ida Mix of Kokomo, members of the legislative committee of the W. C. T. U. have presented a petition for state-wide prohibition to the legislature, containing 53,517 signatures. The petition is in support of a resolution to tack a prohibitory amendment onto the constitution now pending in the legislature.

Ship Subsidy Bill Doomed.

Washington, Feb. 17.—All signs point to the failure in the house of the administration ocean mail subsidy bill. Representative Weeks of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee and a supporter of the measure, practically admits that the bill cannot be passed at this session.

One and only must thy purpose be,
Whole and decided.

Father's Fairy Tales.

During an entertainment period which followed the business session of a woman's club one afternoon recently some of the gentlemen who called for their wives were asked to tell some stories. The husband of the hostess begged to be excused.

"It's something that I seldom do," he exclaimed, "and I am afraid I'd make a sad failure."

The little daughter of the host and hostess was on her feet in an instant.

"Oh, papa, how you talk!" she exclaimed. "I heard mamma say only last night that you had a new yarn to tell every time you came home late at night from the office."—Youngstown Telegram.

The Winning Trick.

A tricky lawyer was defending a man in a promissory note case, and he knew he was going to lose. But in the lunch hour in his tricky way he sneaked back into the courtroom and changed the markers in all the prosecuting counsel's reference book. The judge after consulting all these reference books two hours later pronounced sternly:

"I should certainly have decreed for the plaintiff, but on referring to the citations quoted by plaintiff's counsel I find that they none of them bears even remotely on the case before us, and I incline to think that a gross insult has been perpetrated on this court. Counsel, with idiotic levity, has referred me to the action of a Frenchman who sued a zoological society for having been bitten by a bear. The second reference is to a case of slander. Next I am directed to a forged will and a safe robbery. What have these things to do with an action to recover on a promissory note? But perhaps the most shameful insult to this court lies in counsel's final reference to the notorious Lippman versus Henshaw case, the silliest and most ribald breach of promise suit in all the annals of western jurisprudence. Judgment for defendants, with costs."

His Awful Experience.

A man who had been shipwrecked and then cast up on the Jersey coast, where he lay a whole day before he revived sufficiently to summon help, was receiving the sympathy and congratulations of his friends on his recovery.

"You must have had a terrible experience with no food and mosquitoes swarming around you," said one of them.

"You just bet I had a terrible experience," the saved one acknowledged. "My experience was worse than that of the man who wrote 'Water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink.' With me it was bites, bites, bites everywhere, but not a bite to eat."

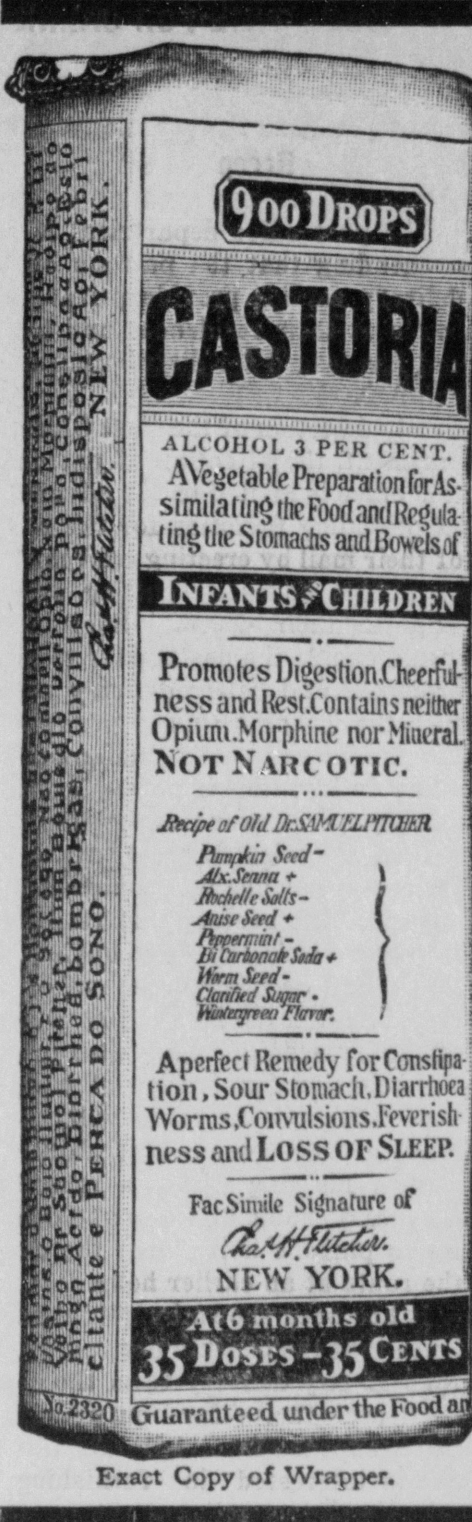

Taking No Risks.

Henry Irving was intensely interested in criminology, and on one occasion this hobby of the famous actor made it rather awkward for one of his friends.

The two men were walking together on a lonely moor. The friend was a very nervous man, and unfortunately at a very desolate spot Mr. Irving glanced round and exclaimed, "What an ideal spot for a murder!"

"Now, suppose I murdered you here," Mr. Irving went on. The other started violently, but Mr. Irving was already deep in his nefarious schemes and paid little attention to the other's obvious dissatisfaction with the subject of conversation. Nobody, Mr. Irving explained, would ever be able to trace the murderer, and he explained at great length how he could cover up his tracks.

"Don't you think it might be done?" he asked, turning again to his companion. But his companion was disappearing in the far distance as fast as his legs could carry him.

A Fashion Chat on Waist Designs that are Popular

Furnished by Pictorial Review

The Pictorial Review Bldg.

222-224-226 West 39th St., New York City

Plain silks are piped with solid color and have groups of tiny buttons covered with the same. Small buttons are covered with all sorts of trimming material and are often applied in double rows down the shoulders or to simulate a closing at the left side.

Features of the peasant style enter into waists of every kind, though this is especially noticeable in afternoon and evening gowns. Waists with some form of kimono sleeves usually have thin under-sleeves, the length of these being optional. Most of the dressy waists, however, have elbow or three-quarter length sleeves.

The waist with the pretty pointed trimming in yoke effect, PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3718, is a good design for combining two materials. It would look well if developed of persian printed satin or marquisette in soft colors. Pattern sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch voile with 3/4 yard of 32-inch satin.

Black and dark blue chiffon waists are made very smart by combining dull blue and red beads with embroidery in a conventional design. Such a trimming may encircle the round neck, extend down the shoulders and on to the sleeves. White beads on black chiffon and velvet are also very fashionable. PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3711 is especially adapted to make the wearer much more slender than she really is. The under front and sleeve-caps are in one piece and the sleeves are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. As illustrated, size 36 requires 1 1/4 yards of 44-inch material, 1/2 yard of contrasting material, 18 inches wide, 1 1/2 yards all-over lace, 18 inches wide and 1 1/2 yards banding.

A very simple and attractive waist is shown in PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3713. The effect is unusual, and tends to make the wearer much more slender than she really is. The under front and back of the waist is cut in one with the sleeve-caps. This portion of the waist must be made of dark blue messaline with little buttons to match running from the shoulder to the end of the sleeve-caps—the outer portion of the waist, the back and front of which is also cut in one piece, could be made of blue henrietta cloth, chiffon broadcloth, satin cloth, etc. Sizes are 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure. As illustrated, size 36 requires 8 yards of 54-inch material, 1 1/4 yards of 36-inch satin and 1 1/4 yards 18-inch all-over lace if long sleeves are desired.

The price of these patterns, including cutting and construction guides is 15 cents each number.

Canned peaches for dessert. Jacob.

Feb. 11, 1911

Dear Friend:

I don't think there is anything nicer for dessert at supper than two nice big slices of canned peaches. The juice is good too. Mama cans peaches and other things for dessert if it is not too much trouble.

Your Friend,
JACOB.

PRIVATE MAIL BOXES SAVE MUCH TIME FOR CARRIERS

Post Office Department Recommends That Patrons Provide Convenient Receptacles.

The post office department is recommending that the patrons of city delivery service provide private mail boxes at their residences and to this end has issued for distribution a circular as follows:

"By direction of the Post Office Department, the attention of patrons of this office is invited to the advantages of providing facilities for the receipt of their mail by erecting conveniently accessible boxes or cutting suitable slots in their doors. Such action would enable the postmaster to give a prompter and better delivery service with the means at his disposal, since the carrier can cover much more territory in less time if not compelled to wait for an answer to their ring. Private receptacles for mail are also a great convenience to the householder, obviating the necessity of responding to the carrier's call at inconvenient moments and permitting the safe delivery of mail in the absence of members of the household. They also prevent the occasional necessity of carrier's proceeding on his route without delivering mail because of failure to answer his ring within a reasonable time, and enable him to make deliveries to patrons living near the end of the route at an earlier hour.

It has been shown by actual experience that the benefits derived by patrons of city delivery from the use of such receptacles far outweigh the small expense involved. As this office is interested in furnishing the best possible service at the least expense, your compliance with the foregoing suggestions will be much appreciated. Respectfully,

POSTMASTER.

"NOTE—Neither the postmaster or any of his subordinates is authorized to act as agent for boxes."

There are now quite a number of mail boxes in use in Seymour and many residents of the city have recently made inquiry about boxes signifying their intention to accept the suggestion of the postoffice Department. The users of boxes find them very satisfactory and the mail carriers find them excellent time savers. Few people realize how much time a carrier consumes on a trip just waiting for some one to answer his knock at front doors. At one house he loses fifteen seconds and another more. During the day he loses not less than a half hour by necessary waits at front doors. His work is heavy and he needs every minute of his time to cover his district on schedule time. Mail boxes placed in convenient places at the front doors save much time for the carriers. Suitable boxes can be purchased at a very reasonable price and local mail carriers are gratified to know that so many people contemplate putting them up in the near future.

GROWING CHILDREN

play hard and work hard at school, and rapid growth uses up an enormous amount of energy and vitality that needs replacing.

This accounts for the many delicate and sickly, ailing children we see on our streets.

We wish the mother of every such child would come to our store for a bottle of Vinol, as it is a delicious food liver and iron tonic which children love to take, and it is easily assimilated.

A grateful mother in Durand, Mich. says her little girl was weak, pale, and had no appetite. She gave her Vinol and she began to thrive at once—and she gained rapidly in weight, color and strength. (Name furnished on request.)

Vinol builds up good healthy flesh and muscle tissue and makes thin little limbs round and plump.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that if it does not benefit your child your money will be refunded. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

THE RANGER'S FAREWELL.

[The Texas legislature is about to abolish the Texas rangers. — News Note.]

Hang up the saddle and white sombrero;
Turn out the old cayusa.
The glory is gone—it's all "dinero"—
Hang it all, what's the use?

Civilization's got us fad-
Crowdin' us here and there;
Nary an out-law's nest to be raid-
Tenderfoot everywhere.

Uster be that a man was humpin'
Guardin' the old frontier,
Bad men kept a-jumpin',
Bullets a-singin' near;

Out in the chaparral all hours,
Killin' or bein' killed—
Never no funeral music nor flowers—
Then life with joy was filled.

Now there are ranch houses in the open,
Fences strung mile on mile;
Nary a bit of the old time gopin'—
Telephones all the style.

Never no more in the smoke we'll mingle,
Turn out the old cayuse;
Hang up the pistol and spurs that jingle—
Durn it all, what's the use?

NEW TOWN TO ORDER FOR 7,642 LONDON FAMILIES.

Vast Undertaking to Relieve English Capital's Congestion.

After a competition among sixty-two architects, many of them of international distinction, plans have been chosen for the great ready made town on the outskirts of London which is to be created on the Ruislip estate of King's college, Cambridge. The place is eighteen minutes by fast trains from the west end. The estates of the college extend to some 1,300 acres in the two Middlesex parishes of Northwood and Ruislip. An "aerated suburb" is what the papers call it.

The Ruislip town planning experiment will be the most extensive undertaking of the kind in the world. There are to be more than 7,600 houses, divided according to rental as follows:

$500 or more rent.....	21
Not exceeding $500 rent.....	524
Not exceeding $300 rent.....	3,541
Not exceeding $150 rent.....	3,556
Total.....	7,642

About 837 acres will be devoted to building plots, 255 acres to parks and other open spaces and 184 acres to roads. Nowhere on the estate are there to be more than ten houses on an acre. This is the rule usually followed in suburban development in America. In some places in Ruislip there will be only two or three dwellings per acre.

The central avenue of the garden town is to have a fifty foot grass strip along its center, flanked on either side by a thirty-two foot roadway. A church will face each end of the avenue. There are to be, of course, a theater, a club, a municipal building, schools, an arcade, a concert hall, a library, a monument, a golf course, a hospital, an abattoir, baths, a laundry, a garage, possibly an aviation ground and every other up to date suburban facility.

The Ruislip manor garden suburb is the first great scheme under the new act of parliament. The London county council is carrying forward several large suburban housing developments.

SEARCHLIGHT GUARDS HENS.

Banker Installs Electric Plant to Stop Chicken Thieves.

James M. Donald, a New York banker who has a country home at Ewing, N. J., has just finished equipping his place with a 3,000 candle power searchlight and a 2,000 candle power arc light for protection against chicken thieves who have been despoiling his henneries. He has also given each of his farm hands a rifle, with orders to shoot if chicken thieves put in an appearance.

The wires for the electric lights are in concrete under ground so that they cannot be tampered with. The arrangements are such that the opening of a door or window in the henneries will throw on the lights.

LARCENY MOST PREVALENT.

Large Number in Indiana Reformatory for That Charge.

From a report filed by the board of trustees and superintendent of the Indiana Reformatory, it is found that the majority of the convicts now serving sentences were convicted of larceny.

The report shows that there were received during the year ending Sept. 30, 1910, a total of 316 convicts at the reformatory, and that the crimes for which most of them were sentenced were robbery in some form. The convictions for petit larceny head the list with 112, then grand larceny with 58, forgery 21, entering house to commit a felony 17, burglary 12. There were 12 for assault and battery with intent to kill, and 14 for rape. In a general way these figures hold good each year during the past five years.

Of the 316 convicted during the year, 252 were white and 64 colored; 190 were of active mental condition and 110 were of fair mental condition. In 180 of the cases the parents of the convicts were native born, and in the case of 235 both parents were foreign. At the time of conviction 142 were strictly temperate, 85 were moderate drinkers and 89 drank to excess. Of the 315 all but 62 used tobacco in some form. It appears that neither liquor nor bad associates were the cause of the downfall of most of them as up to the time of their conviction 179 had good associates, while the associates of 113 others were mixed, and the associates of only 24 were bad. Only 29 of the number were illiterate, 280 being able to read and write and seven were high school graduates.

A majority of them claimed no religion whatever and probably had little or no religious training; 134 were divided about equally among the different religious bodies according to the relative of each in Indiana.
